Child Behavioral Assessment and Management: Second Edition.

New edition of the popular book by Carey & McDevitt (2016) based on the concept that behavior in primary care should be viewed as a spectrum where normal conflicts shade into problems and then disordered behavior, rather than making categorical judgments about whether symptoms are severe enough to diagnose and treat as an abnormal condition.

Child Behavioral Assessment and Management: Second Edition.

William B. Carey, MD & Sean C. McDevitt, PhD, (2016).

This book is intended for professionals who work directly with children in a primary care setting. This includes not only nurses and primary care physicians but also teachers, daycare workers, school psychologists, social workers, various therapists and others. Written by two clinicians who have practiced for many years in primary care, this presentation rejects the notion that behavioral status should only be classified as normal or abnormal. Rather, it suggests that primary care professionals should view children's behavior on a spectrum where annoying normal variations may shade into problems and then to disordered behavior requiring specialized care. This perspective is preferable to the limited approach of simply making categorical judgments about whether the problems are severe enough to be diagnosed and treated, or that there is no real problem. By taking into account matters of aversive temperament and atypical behavioral adjustment as well as behavioral disorders, the entire range of behavioral concerns can be considered.

The second edition of CBAM offers new content, including discussion of areas of temperament beside the one the authors have found most useful and a more detailed review of the application of temperament counseling. A new chapter deals with the confusion of terminology that has crept into the behavioral health field in recent years.

You Won't Be Treated Like a College Sophomore!

...unless you are one!

The new online ATQ2 has been updated to incorporate age and gender norms for 16 different groups ranging from teens to 60+. So no matter your age or gender, your temperament profile will reflect your individual demographics and compare you to others like yourself. The new norms were established, based on over 6400 adults who completed the original ATQ. The process allows users to select the norms to be used for their temperament profile (e.g., college age males, females in their 40s, etc.) or to use the original, now called 'classic,' norms. Doing this adjusts the user's profile interpretations to an appropriate age and gender comparison group, resulting in a more meaningful interpretation. In addition profile category descriptions have been extended from three to five levels for each of the nine scales, allowing for finer grained statements about temperament for each individual. So when you want to discover your own temperament profile, the ATQ2 is ready to go at:

www.b-di.com/atqweb.html

On the other hand, if you teach sophomores: ATQ2 in the classroom may be what you need!

Students in college or high school are taking the ATQ2 and becoming aware of temperament, personality testing, the biological bases of behavior, psychometrics and more. They learn about themselves and how their own temperament may affect their relationships and parenting. In a recent Temperament Consortium newsletter Dr. Charles Super at the University of CT said: "Such self-awareness prepares students nicely for reflection on how their own temperamental disposition might influence their eventual parenting behavior. Students are quick to see the implications of extreme scores: High persistence might make it more likely one would follow through on an important issue for the child; but could also, if misdirected, create a lot of resistance about something not that important. The holy grail of the temperament lesson, of course, is "goodness of fit."

Adult Temperament Questionnaire 2: 2013 Edition

by Stella Chess MD & Alexander Thomas MD

2016 Update! New questionnaire design!

Determine temperament profile in parents or adult clients using the expanded ATQ2 norms. Areas where there are problems in 'fit' can be identified and addressed with ATQ2. Adult temperament characteristics can now be assessed more accurately with this 54 item self report questionnaire, which is easily administered and scored using the profile and scoring sheets included with the set, or with online scoring software (see page 5).

The process now allows users to select specific norms for their temperament profile (e.g., college age males, females in their 40s, etc.) or to use the original, 'classic,' norms. In addition profile category descriptions have been extended from three to five levels for each of the nine scales, allowing for finer grained statements about temperament for each individual.

The BASICS Behavioral Adjustment Scale

BBAS Practice Set

BBAS Questionnaire

iBBAS Report

The BBAS is 48 item parent report questionnaire that determines behavioral adjustment in 4 to 14 year old children. Behavioral adjustment is defined by 5 areas of functioning:

- Behavior in social relationships (parents, sibs, teachers, etc);
- Achievement (schoolwork, homework, chores, hobbies);
- Self-Relations (self-esteem, self-care, self-regulation);
- Internal State (contentment, anxiety, mood, thought processes);
- Coping (identifying, solving, persisting, etc);
- Symptoms (eating, sleeping, elimination, etc).

The aspects of behavior assessed by the BBAS go beyond the child’s normal temperament style to determine the level of behavioral adjustment, including symptoms and areas of difficulty in functioning in the youngster’s home, school and community settings. While not diagnostic of emotional or behavioral disorders in DSM-IV, the BBAS identifies areas that need to be addressed to improve overall adjustment. Individual item scores can be used as markers for areas where further assessment and possible intervention are needed. Scale scores are compared with a large sample of normal children aged 4-14 to see where the child stands in comparison to peers at the same age level. Together these data can assist the clinician in setting up an overall plan to meet the child’s needs.

online scoring of behavioral adjustment

BBAS Online Scoring Report

The internet scoring version of BBAS (iBBAS) utilizes the web for scoring the questionnaire and generates a written report that displays the scores and organizes the results. Users need an internet connection and a valid email address to implement this option.

Online scoring is accomplished by logging in to an internet page and entering the BBAS ratings from the BBAS questionnaire. The scoring program generates a 3 page report which summarizes the caregiver's responses into a visually appealing and clinically useful document in html format. An email notifies the professional of the confirmation number of the report which can be accessed on the web for one year following the date of scoring. The report document can be printed in color or b/w, posted on the internet or emailed to the caregiver or another professional for easy viewing in a standard web browser. The html file can also be saved on the professional's own computer using the simple instructions provided.

Understanding your child's temperament.

NEW EDITION!!

by William B. Carey, MD with Martha Jablow.

Written for parents and professionals by one of the foremost experts in the field, this is a comprehensive guide for caregivers who are challenged by a temperamentally 'difficult' child. This book educates and informs the average reader about temperament and gives practical advice about how to 1) understand behavioral style in infants and children, and 2) address concerns about behavior. It also contains an informative list of resources for parents who need support and guidance.

"(Dr. Carey) explains what temperament is, why it is significant, and how it affects both children and parents. He shows parents how to recognize and handle a range of different--yet normal--temperament styles. Perhaps more important, he offers solid suggestions for working effectively and harmoniously with a child's inborn temperament."

-C. Everett Koop, MD
