Child Behavioral Assessment and Management: Second Edition.

New edition of the popular book by Carey & McDevitt (2016) based on the concept that behavior in primary care should be viewed as a spectrum where normal conflicts shade into problems and then disordered behavior, rather than making categorical judgments about whether symptoms are severe enough to diagnose and treat as an abnormal condition.

Child Behavioral Assessment and Management: Second Edition.

William B. Carey, MD & Sean C. McDevitt PhD, (2016)

This book is intended for professionals who work directly with children in a primary care setting. This includes not only nurses and primary care physicians but also teachers, daycare workers, school psychologists, social workers, various therapists and others. Written by two clinicians who have practiced for many years in primary care, this presentation rejects the notion that behavioral status should only be classified as normal or abnormal. Rather, it suggests that primary care professionals should view children's behavior on a spectrum where annoying normal variations may shade into problems and then to disordered behavior requiring specialized care. This perspective is preferable to the limited approach of simply making categorical judgments about whether the problems are severe enough to be diagnosed and treated, or that there is no real problem. By taking into account matters of aversive temperament and atypical behavioral adjustment as well as behavioral disorders, the entire range of behavioral concerns can be considered.

The second edition of CBAM offers new content, including discussion of areas of temperament beside the one the authors have found most useful and a more detailed review of the application of temperament counseling. A new chapter deals with the confusion of terminology that has crept into the behavioral health field in recent years.

Temperament questionnaires are excellent for use in the short-term treatment of behavioral issues or parenting problems. These tools are used by clinicians and early interventionists for parent training, education, and consultation in primary health care settings. The CTS instruments may be incorporated into the practices of professionals trained in several disciplines, including physicians, psychologists, social workers, counselors, therapists and others with advanced training who work with children in behavioral health, education and the healing arts.

You Won't Be Treated Like a College Sophomore!

...unless you are one!

The new online ATQ2 has been updated to incorporate age and gender norms for 16 different groups ranging from teens to 60+. So no matter your age or gender, your temperament profile will reflect your individual demographics and compare you to others like yourself. The new norms were established, based on over 6400 adults who completed the original ATQ. The process allows users to select the norms to be used for their temperament profile (e.g., college age males, females in their 40s, etc.) or to use the original, now called 'classic,' norms. Doing this adjusts the user's profile interpretations to an appropriate age and gender comparison group, resulting in a more meaningful interpretation. In addition profile category descriptions have been extended from three to five levels for each of the nine scales, allowing for finer grained statements about temperament for each individual.

So whether you just want to discover your own temperament profile, or let your whole class learn about theirs, the ATQ2 is ready to go at link: www.b-di.com/atqweb.html

Adult Temperament Questionnaire 2: 2017 Edition

by Stella Chess MD & Alexander Thomas MD

2017 Update! New questionnaire design!

Determine temperament profile in parents or clients 13 or older, using the expanded ATQ2 norms. Areas where there are problems in 'fit' can be identified and addressed with ATQ2. Adult temperament characteristics can now be assessed more accurately with this 54 item self report questionnaire, which is easily administered and scored using the profile and scoring sheets included with the set, or with online scoring software (see page 5). The new version includes 6 experimental items designed to strengthen the psychometric properties and coverage of the original NYLS items. The process now allows users to select specific norms for their temperament profile (e.g., college age males, females in their 40s, etc.) or to use the original, 'classic,' norms. In addition profile category descriptions have been extended from three to five levels for each of the nine scales, allowing for finer grained statements about temperament for each individual.

The ATQ2 has a new, easier-to-use scoring technique which reduces scoring time to about 5 minutes. Software includes administration of questionnaire items on a computer screen in about 10 minutes or scoring of the results of a paper questionnaire in 2-3 minutes.

The BASICS Behavioral Adjustment Scale

The BBAS is 48 item parent report questionnaire that determines behavioral adjustment in 4 to 14 year old children. Behavioral adjustment is defined by 5 areas of functioning:

- Behavior in social relationships (parents, sibs, teachers, etc);
- Achievement (schoolwork, homework, chores, hobbies);
- Self-Relations (self-esteem, self-care, self-regulation);
- Internal State (contentment, anxiety, mood, thought processes);
- Coping (identifying, solving, persisting, etc);
- Symptoms (eating, sleeping, elimination, etc).

The aspects of behavior assessed by the BBAS go beyond the child's normal temperament style to determine the level of behavioral adjustment, including symptoms and areas of difficulty in functioning in the youngster's home, school and community settings. While not diagnostic of emotional or behavioral disorders in DSM-IV, the BBAS identifies areas that need to be addressed to improve overall adjustment. Individual item scores can be used as markers for areas where further assessment and possible intervention are needed. Scale scores are compared with a large sample of normal children aged 4-14 to see where the child stands in comparison to peers at the same age level. Together these data can assist the clinician in setting up an overall plan to meet the child's needs.

The new version allows for separate use of the Questionnaire and Information sheet. Professional users may use either or both, at the same or different times.

Online scoring is accomplished by logging in to an internet page and entering the BBAS ratings from the BBAS questionnaire. Understanding your child's temperament. SECOND EDITION!

by William B. Carey, MD with Martha Jablow.

Written for parents and professionals by one of the foremost experts in the field, this is a comprehensive guide for caregivers who are challenged by a temperamentally 'difficult' child. This book educates and informs the average reader about temperament and gives practical advice about how to

- 1) understand behavioral style in infants and children, and
- 2) address concerns about behavior. It also contains an informative list of resources for parents who need support and guidance.

"(Dr. Carey) explains what temperament is, why it is significant, and how it affects both children and parents. He shows parents how to recognize and handle a range of different--yet normal--temperament styles. Perhaps more important, he offers solid suggestions for working effectively and harmoniously with a child's inborn temperament."
